DETAILED ACTION

1. This communication is responsive to the applicant's amendment dated 05/16/2005.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112, 1st Paragraph

2. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

3. Claims 5-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The claimed features of "a disc player is connectable to a mixing apparatus, said disc player comprising: an outputting part which outputs an audio signal read from a disc; a memory for storing a designated address position; and a controller (per claim5) or control means (per claim 7) for performs a control operation or where in said disc player (per claim 10) start a reproduction operation when an instruction to start reproduction is received from said mixing apparatus and stop the reproduction operation and to move a pickup to an address position stored in said memory to stand by when an instruction to stop reproduction is received from said mixing apparatus" is not clearly disclosed or supported by specification.

The specification discloses an audio signals mixer with a microcomputer 5 for controlling specific audio signal mixing functions, but does not disclose claimed language that the disc player comprising 'a memory for storing a designated address position' as argued. The specification does not disclose that a memory is included/integrated within the disc player. Pages 13 and 14 as argued indeed recites 'when the knob 17a of the slide-type volume control 17, after moved away from the A-end, has reached the B-end, the reproducing operation by the CD player associated with the channel CHm is stopped in response to the back cue signal, and a pickup (not shown) of the CD player is returned from a currently reading position to a previously specified address position. The previously specified address position has been specified by the user (editor) and stored in a memory or the like.' but this language does not support the claimed limitation of disc player comprising a memory for storing a designed address position.

There is also no support in the specification that the disc player comprising a controller (per claim 5) or control means (per claim 7) for performs a control operation or where in said disc player (per claim 10) start a reproduction operation as claimed. The disc player is shown as one of the CD player 1-4 as described and shown in Fig. 1. The controller or control means for audio signals reproduction operation is disclosed in the specification as component of the mixing apparatus. Not a component of the disc player itself as implied by the claims. Therefore, the specification containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

4. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010

(Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

5. Claims 5-10 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 3 of U.S. Patent No. 6,301,365. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims in the application are broader than the ones in the patent. 214
